

Edinburgh Carers Council

Independent, Individual and Collective Advocacy for Carers

About us

Providing independent advocacy for unpaid carers

Who we are

Edinburgh Carers Council is a charity that has provided service to carers for 20 years. When you are caring for someone with mental health difficulties, it can be stressful, confusing and isolating. Our services help carers access the support and information they need to be in control of their own caring situation.

We support unpaid carers who care for an adult (18 and over) with mental health difficulties, a learning disability, dementia, traumatic brain injury or physical health disability. We also provide support to carers of children under 16 who are receiving services from CAMHS (Children & Adolescent Mental Health Services).

Located at 14 Links Place, we also have an office at the Royal Edinburgh Hospital. Appointments can be made to be seen at either office.

To access our advocacy service call us on 0131 322 8480.

Are you a carer?

A carer may be a family member, partner or friend who supports or cares for someone who has mental or physical health difficulties, dementia or a learning disability. Carers may or may not live with the person they support, and they may or may not carry out physical tasks. Carers do not have to be in receipt of Carers Allowance and our team provides advocacy to carers where the person they care for may not have a diagnosis nor wish to access services.

Carers may have roles or duties for the person they care for, for example under the Mental Health (Care and Treatment) (Scotland) Act or the Adults with Incapacity (Scotland) Act and advocacy can support these roles. Carers may need information and support in relation to setting up a Guardianship or attending a Mental Health Tribunal.

The Carers (Scotland) Act which came into force in April 2018 provides new rights to carers.

Free, confidential and independent services

Our team provides advocacy information and training to empower carers. To use our services, either the carer or person they care for, must be resident or using hospital or community health services in the City of Edinburgh.

We believe carers need:

- To be respected, valued and taken seriously.
- Their views to be heard and to be consulted at all levels of planning, development and implementation of services.
- Opportunities for breaks from caring and information to assist them maintain their own health and quality of life.
- Practical and emotional support.

If you require information about any aspect of mental health care or services, please telephone us on 0131 322 8480.

The work we do

Providing information and support to carers

- We organise meetings and groups, plus hold a bimonthly Carers Forum, which covers issues concerning carers and other topics of interest.
- We have an information booklet and newsletters which are on our website or can be posted.
- Our website www.edinburghcarerscouncil.co.uk has links to support and services available for carers.
- We develop and deliver training for Mental Health Officers and the citywide Carer Awareness Training programme for health and social care staff.

Individual Advocacy

Advocacy is about having somebody to help you be heard and represent your needs and views as effectively as possible. An advocacy worker is there to support you in your decisions and can lend weight to your views. They will support and work with you on specific issues and try to get them resolved. An advocacy worker is not there to judge or say if you are wrong or right; their role is to support you and only you. For example, you may need:

- help with finding ongoing support for yourself as a carer,
- assistance and support at meetings, mental health tribunals or reviews with medical staff and social care staff,
- help with letters and forms or with raising your issues,
- information about your rights,
- advocacy support in your role as named person, appointee, power of attorney or welfare guardian,
- support if the person you care for is going through a period of transition.

To make an appointment with an advocacy worker please call us on 0131 322 8480. Carers can access our services directly or by referral.

Collective Advocacy

We provide opportunities for mental health carers to be involved in collective advocacy. Carers can work together to bring about change and raise awareness of issues which affect them.

Through collective advocacy carers can be involved in all stages of the planning of mental health services. They can also share their experiences, exchange information and take action as a group.

Edinburgh Carers Council promotes carers collective advocacy by:

- Bringing together carers from Edinburgh and the Lothians at our Carers Forum which meets bimonthly and is led by carers.
- Facilitating monthly carer groups for carers of people in older people's services.

Transitions Carer Advocacy Service

Who is the service for?

The Transitions service is for families and carers of people in mental health settings within Lothian who are in a period of transition. For example, people they support may be moving from hospital rehabilitation wards to community living or from children's (CAMHS) to adult mental health services. The service is also for carers of people in mental health settings who will be returning to Lothian from 'out of area' placements or for those moving from Lothian to 'out of area' placements.

Aims of the service

- To provide carers with information and advocacy support to enable them to be as fully involved as they wish in the planning and transition of the person they care for.
- To promote the health and well-being of carers.

What the service offers

- Advocacy support for carers through a period of transition.
- Information specific to the rights, needs and wishes of carers.
- Assistance to explore options and help to decide what you want.
- Help and assistance to express your views including support at meetings or reviews with medical and social care staff and help with letters and forms.
- Signposting to other services and supports.
- Enabling carers to focus on their own health and well-being.
- A resource for staff within the relevant services to promote the development of the best practice around engaging and working effectively with carers.

Accessing the service

Carers can access the service directly or by referral from another organisation. If you would like further information about the Transitions Carer Advocacy Service or to make a referral, please call us on 0131 322 8480 or e-mail info@edinburghcarerscouncil.co.uk
